

My Dream?

Hansika Rajkumar

Multiple people have asked me this question multiple number of times. What is your dream? The standard answer I had to everyone was "I don't know." The truth was I really didn't know what my dream was. I didn't know what I wanted for dinner that night let alone know what I wanted in the future.

So what is my dream ?

Well for starters ,the ultimate goal is to be happy. So now the question is what will make me happy? People say money doesn't buy you happiness. I absolutely contradict that statement .Are people saying that they will be happy being a beggar? I don't think so. Its not that I want to become ultra rich like Ambani and own a private jet. I want to lead a comfortable life and yes I would like to spend my vacations in Bali and Maldives. Professionally I would like to be a good doctor and reach the goals which I have in my mind .

I would also like to start some kind of business apart from being a doctor. I am not sure what that would be as of now.

Personally I would like to have a family ,be healthy ,take care of my parents and my brother and be happy(which is the ultimate goal ,isn't it?)

In conclusion,I have no idea what the future holds ,but I do know one thing-whatever I do ,I want my loved ones and myself to be happy. So,yes that would be my dream -to be HAPPY.
