

A golden bird in a gilded cage. That's where the bird belongs, right? What if the bird doesn't want to be a golden bird anymore? What if it envies the common raven in the sky? What if it dares to act on its dreams? Its dream - No, my dream, is to leave behind the golden fetters.

