Of an unsaid Dream

S Nithikaa AIE 020

I've always been curious as to why so many children suffer from malnourishment (the majority are orphans) worldwide. Is there any way I could feed them wholesome food that would be of high quality?

I had an idea for a solution to this issue. What if the government adopted all of these kids, fed them healthy food, and gave them military training? Sounds incredible, doesn't it? It would be mutually beneficial. Children receive jobs, food, and shelter, and the government can assemble a powerful army. For the government, it is a long-term investment.

I wish I could do this.
