

I have many dreams in life. The foremost is to become financially independent right now. This thought didn't impacted me much until I completed my UG. But nowadays I feel guilty to ask my parents to send me money. Though I keep track of my expenses & use them effectively as possible, sometimes I feel like I am too dependent on them. I don't know if I will be able to do as much as they did for me, but I want to do something for them.

My parents have not forced me to do anything be it academics. In most families, I think Parents urge their children to take Bio Maths/Neet in 11th & 12th std. But in my case, my Parents told me it's your wish. They just suggested that Commerce would be apt for me. I took Bio Maths since Science was my favorite subject till 10th std, later I regretted my decision since it was very hard to cover the portions. But yes I have gained some knowledge.

I love animals very much. I feel peaceful & happy just by seeing them. In future after I get settled in my career, I want to build a shelter for them where every animal feel loved & taken care of, be it the physically fit, aged or the differently - able ones.
